Talks were also given before the Rotary Club of Battle Creek, the Business Men s Club in Albion, the Woman s Club in Marshall. The grades and high schools of Battle Creek, Albion and Marshall were also given health talks, as well as the Boy Scouts organization in Battle Creek. A meeting was held with the County Medical association at Battle Creek, and an address given to the students of Albion College. Battle Creek for some years has maintained several open-air schools that have served as models for the country; in that respect it is in the foremost rank. Battle Creek also maintains an Anti-Tuberculosis Society. When the survey was held in Calhoun county an agitation was begun for a county sanatorium. The medical association began weekly free tuberculosis clinics in Battle Creek. The Rotary Club appropriated enough money to support a visiting nurse for thirty-one weeks. The local physicians showed a lively interest in the work and much valuable aid was given by the publicity department of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. Ingham County Containing as it does the state s capital city, Ingham County was an important county in the survey. As the home of the State Board of Health and of the general government that made the survey possible, the county seemed to merit special attention because of the effect success there would have on the rest of the state. And it is perhaps safe to...
