Excerpt: . . . THE LYNX-- Another animal of the cat kind, that is not a native of our island. In the mountainous regions of many parts of Europe this short tailed fierce cat is found; it is at least between two and three times as large as the wild cat, and being equally agile, as well as larger, the Lynx is also fiercer in proportion. Its ears are peculiarly tufted, and the eyes are truly clear and fine, but no animal, when excited, can shew a more diabolical expression of face than this, as may often be witnessed by any one, who should happen to stand before its cage in the Zoological gardens at the time it is fed. In its native mountain woods it lives chiefly upon birds and small quadrupeds. A species, closely similar to this, is found in Canada and other parts of North America,...
